

Jennifer K. Clark, MD, is a Healthcare Delivery Scientist providing a wide range of consulting services in the healthcare sector and educating as faculty at the University of Tulsa Institute for Health Care Delivery Sciences. As a palliative care physician and former chief medical officer of a large healthcare system, Dr. Clark has served in a multitude of capacities from the bedside to the boardroom. She has practiced Internal Medicine, Pediatrics and Palliative Medicine since 2007 and has been board certified in Hospice & Palliative Medicine since 2010. Dr. Clark has also received certification in Ayurvedic Counseling, the ancient medical tradition of India. Her professional interests focus on innovative healthcare delivery, human development and the cultivation of vibrant living. More information can be found by listening to her 2019 TEDxUTulsa presentation or by visiting her website, www.thegiftofchoosing.com.

Dr. Clark earned her Bachelor's Degree in Business Administration and East Asian Studies from the University of Kansas in Lawrence, KS in 1994. She obtained her Medical Degree from the University of Kansas School of Medicine in Kansas City, KS in 2003. She completed her Internal Medicine-Pediatrics internship and residency at the Medical University of South Carolina in Charleston, SC in 2004 and 2007, respectively. She completed the Harvard Medical School Palliative Care Education & Practice Program in 2009 and most recently, the Chopra Center Perfect Health Teacher's training in 2017.

Dr. Clark's personal interests include spending time with her husband and two children, traveling, reading and cooking.